NOTE: SHOW Slide 1 (Title Slide)

NOTE: SHOW Slide 2 (Identifications and Wear of Army Uniform)

a. Purposes and history of the military uniforms

(1) To provide a means by which units might readily be identified in action or on the march

(2) A means by which rank could be distinguished

(3) To foster pride of service and esprit de corps. The uniform in America is based on European tradition. Some of the history behind it is as follows:

(4) The idea of camouflaged uniforms began in the American Revolutionary War with homespun brown deerskins. But, continental soldiers wore uniforms patterned after the British. Not until World War I did the U.S. Army begin to wear uniforms designed to blend with the terrain and vegetation.

(5) Until World War I, the "dress-up" uniform and the "work" uniform were one and the same. This created obvious problems in camouflage, suitability on the battlefield, ease of cleaning, etc.

(6) Today, the dress uniforms preserve the traditional values of the past by retaining some of the colors and ornamentation of former times. However, the work uniform is designed for use on the battlefield and makes no effort to be distinctive except in insignia

NOTE: Drill Sergeants should use actual uniforms for this portion of the class when possible

b. Utility Uniform: Army Combat Uniform (ACU)

(1) Occasions for wear:

(2) Restrictions on wear:

(a) Soldiers may not wear the combat uniform for commercial travel unless authorized IAW para 3-7b through c of AR 670-1.

(b) Personnel may not wear the combat uniform in off-post establishments that primarily sell alcohol for consumption on the premises.
